mr. simcock

as this school year comes to an end, all of us will be leaving. some of us will return again in the fall, but we won't ever be here again just like we were this year. we hope you won't forget all the things we've done here together. and as you look through these pages of time we hope you will often remember both the fun and hard work each of us put into this school year and remember each event better because of this book. the citadel staff takes pride in being able to present to you, each student of pioneer valley academy, citdel 70.

mr. krueger,

in dedicating this book to you we can't choose a few outstanding points for which to give you honor, for you in your life don't excel in just one point. You show to us a quiet christian example of patience, love, dedication to your classes, guidance, and a willingness to take on extra responsibilities such as senior class sponsor and "available" bus driver. Thank you for this example to us and for being just you.

1970 citadel staff

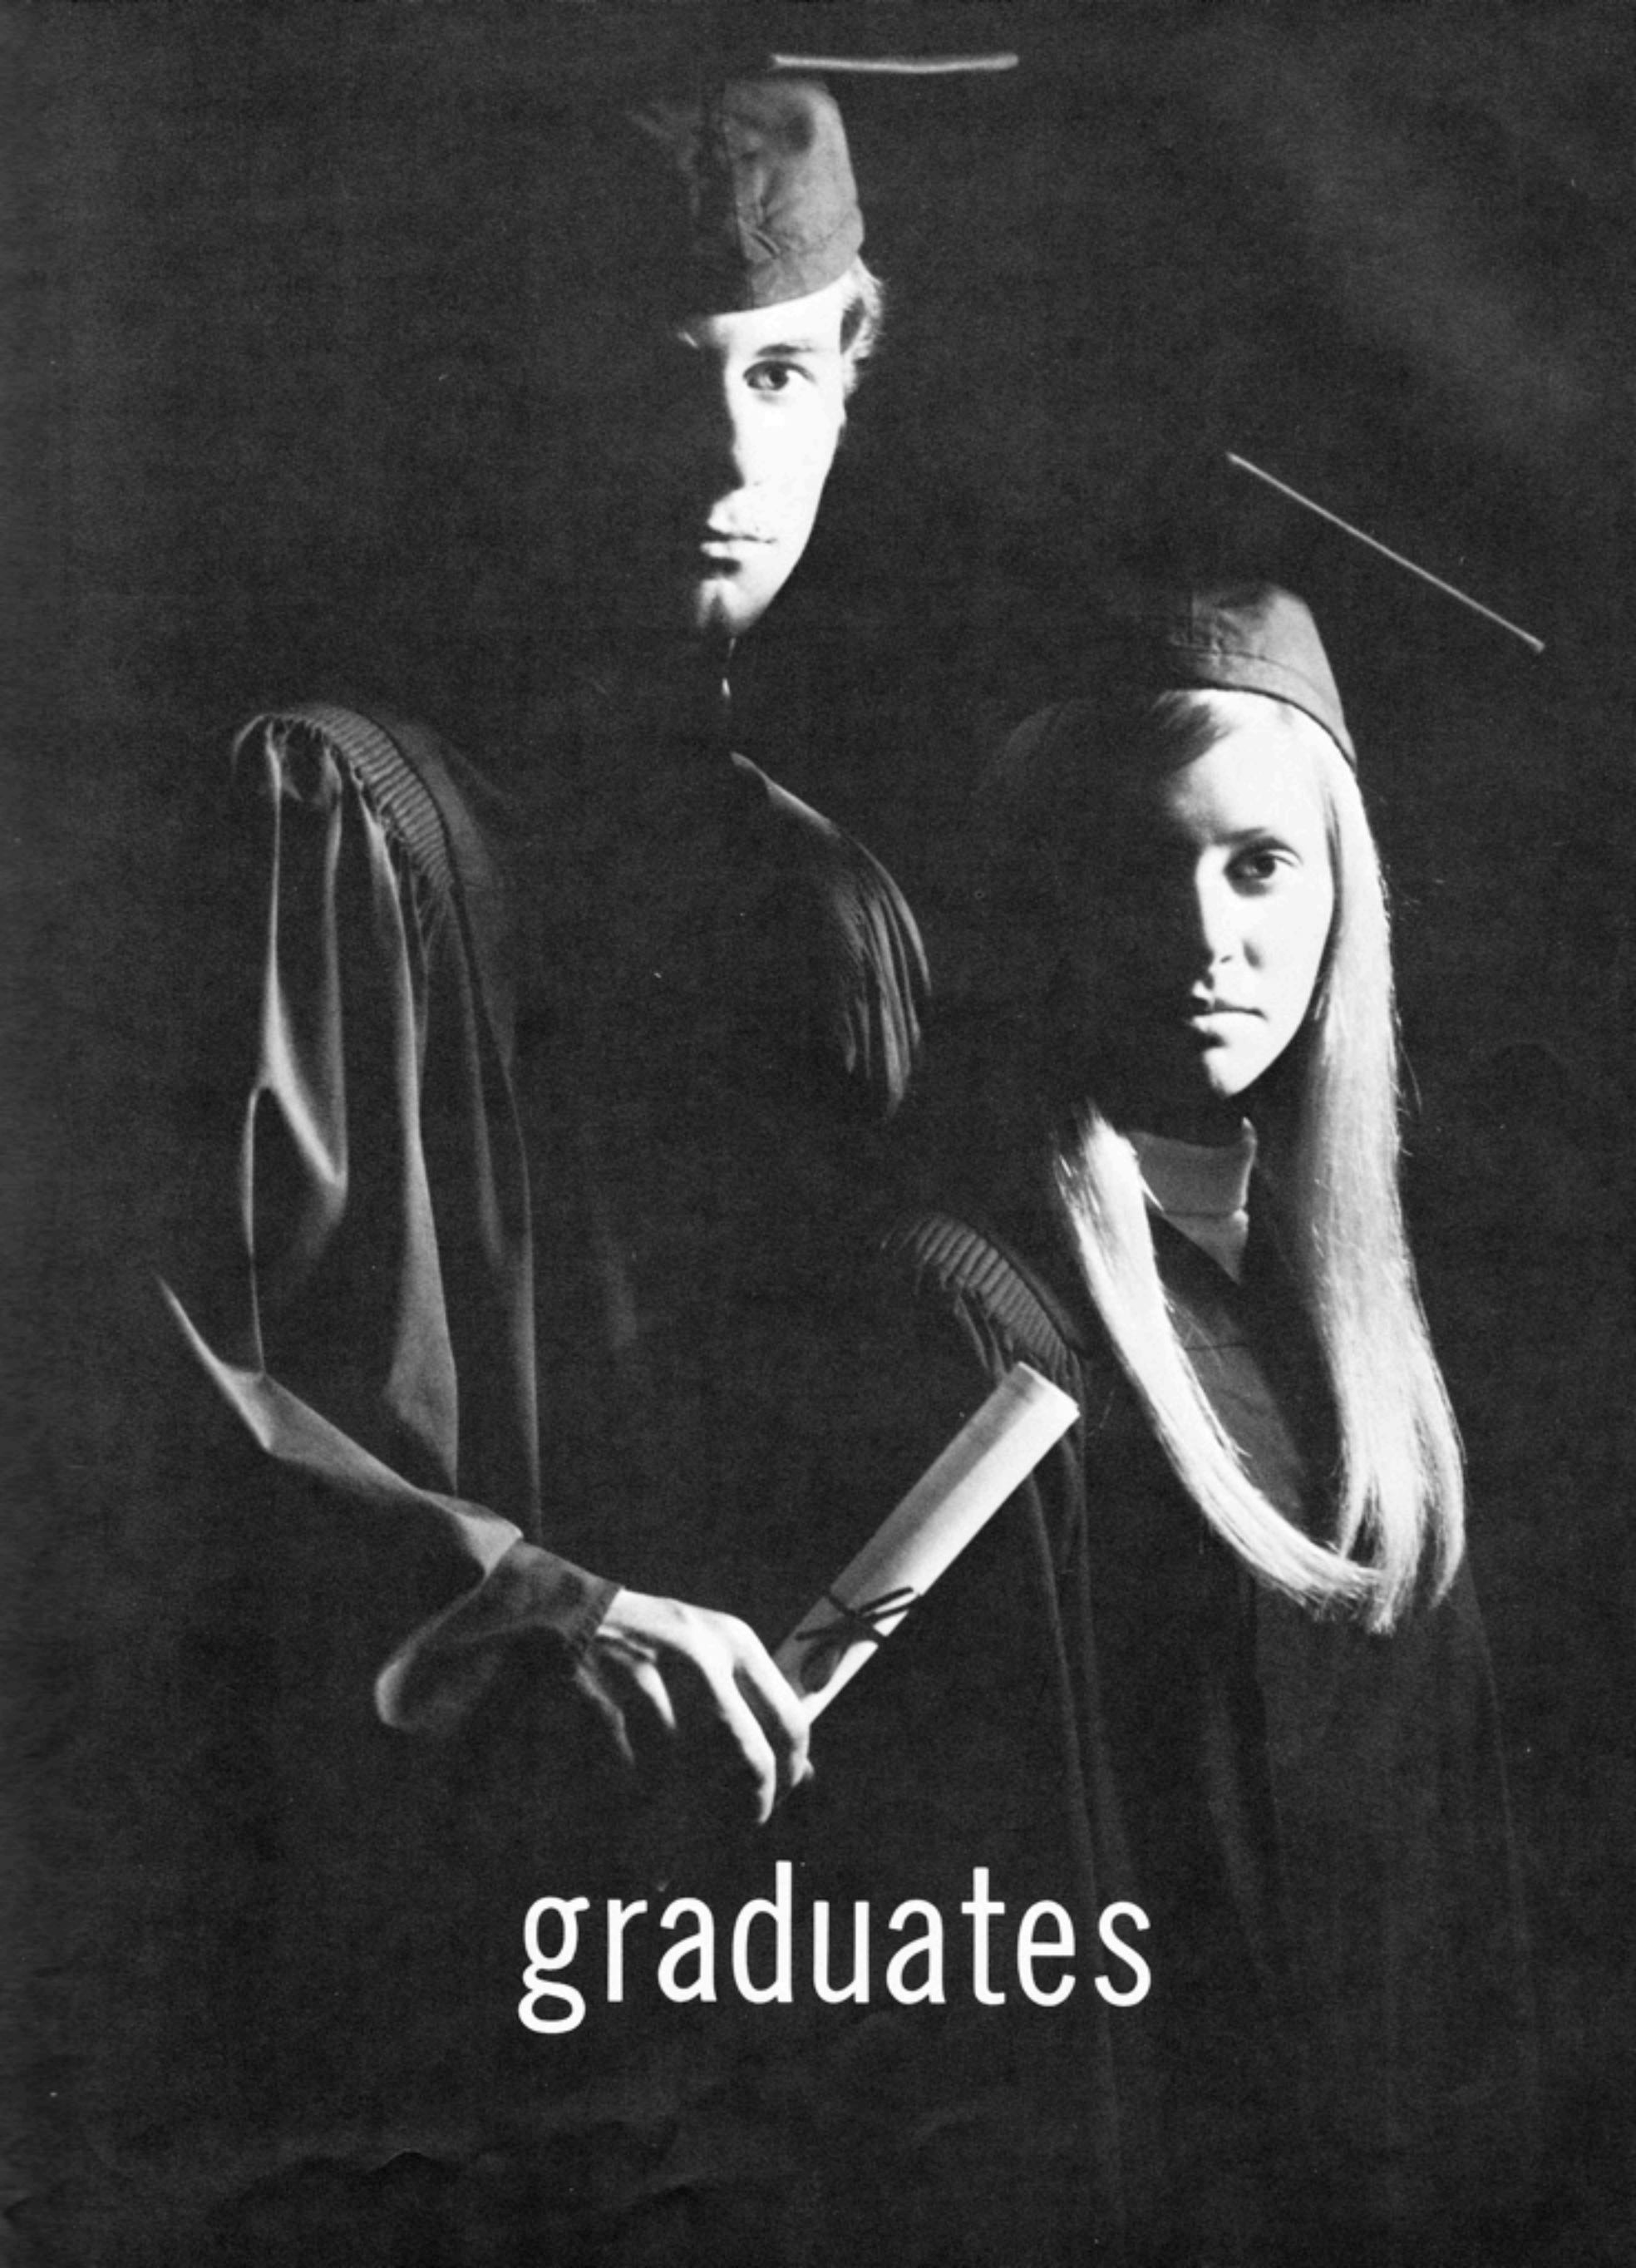

God's other gift, "the ability to . . . think" the word think should be one of the most important words in the life of any individual. if man would think before he speaks, he would seldom, if ever have to apologize for what he says. if he would think before he acts it would be virtually unnecessary to regret what he had done. if he would think before he condemns the life of another, he would live a better life himself and be able to see more of the good in others. if he would think about what he is contributing to this world he could never feel completely satisfied, for if he did he could not possibly be contributing to the world to come, since our only worthwhile contributions are those which have eternal value. time has fairly proven that so often tragedy alone initiates our only serious thinking. it is the prayer of this staff that the word think will pave the runway of your life, guide the entire flight, and pilot you safely to your heavenly destination.
